

The Warshaw Family from Chaim Leib Warshaw and Hana Liba Pinkusowicz. The dates of this first generation are off because this area was in the Russian emprise and they used the Julian or Old Style Russian calendar that was 12 day behind the Gregorian calendar used today. The information below regarding the children of Masia and Szyia are from Sophia Lazebnik.

Chaim Leib Warshaw was from Kaluszyn. Hana Liba from Stanislawow. Chaim Leib was, for many years, a tailor in the Russian army. According to Michael Stanislawski, if he was conscripted he would have served only 2-5 years, and to be sure a lot of Jewish soldiers were tailors. But it seems he decided to stay on as a tailor in the Russian Army, voluntarily, most probably because it provided him with a nice living, and crucially, the right to live legally outside the Pale of Settlement, in this case in Baku and then later in Astrakhan. He preferred Russia to Poland, but after WWI and the Russian revolution the situation worsened and in 1920, it seems, he returned with parts or all of his family to Poland, and eventually moved to Warsaw.

They had 5 children:
